After merger with tradias: Boerse Stuttgart Digital opens second headquarters in Frankfurt am Main

- Two equal-ranking headquarters in Stuttgart and Frankfurt am Main
- United team under one roof following the merger with tradias
- New location in the "Die Welle" building next to the “Alte Oper”

Frankfurt am Main, November 26th, 2026 – Boerse Stuttgart Digital has opened its second headquarters in Frankfurt am Main. With two equal-ranking headquarters in Stuttgart and Frankfurt, the company is expanding its presence to Germany's most important financial center. The opening follows the merger of Boerse Stuttgart Digital and tradias in August of this year. As a result, a business unit for crypto and digital assets with around 300 employees has been formed under the umbrella of Boerse Stuttgart Group. The new office is located in the "Die Welle" building, right next to “Alte Oper” and has space for our entire Frankfurter team of more than 80 members.

"With our second headquarters in Frankfurt, we are where the heart of the German financial industry beats. Our location strategy spanning Stuttgart and Frankfurt is a strong foundation for our further growth. In the new office, our teams now work together as one crew. Our goal is clear: together, we want to become Europe's number one for crypto and digital assets," says Ulli Spankowski, Co-CEO of Boerse Stuttgart Digital.

From its new location, Boerse Stuttgart Digital is close to many banks and financial service providers. These institutions increasingly need comprehensive solutions so they can offer their customers access to cryptocurrencies and digital assets, because retail investors are very interested. This is shown by a representative study conducted by Marketagent on behalf of Boerse Stuttgart Digital, which surveyed 2,000 people in Germany. According to the study, 40% of Germans plan to invest in cryptocurrencies within the next five years. 36,5% of Germans would also switch banks to get better crypto offerings. This is a clear opportunity for financial institutions to make digital assets a bigger part of their portfolios and keep customers for the long term.

"In the long term, we want to be the infrastructure partner of choice for every major financial institution planning to enter an own crypto and digital asset business. The merger gives us a solid foundation with enormous growth potential, because our combined offering lets us reach even more institutional clients," says Christopher Beck, Co-CEO of Boerse Stuttgart Digital.

In addition to the two headquarters in Stuttgart and Frankfurt, the company will keep its existing locations in Athens, Berlin, Dubai, Ljubljana, Madrid and Milan.

About Boerse Stuttgart Digital
Boerse Stuttgart Digital is Europe's leading crypto infrastructure partner and offers crypto trading and custody at institutional level as a modular one-stop shop. As part of Boerse Stuttgart Group, with more than 160 years of financial market expertise, Boerse Stuttgart Digital is fully regulated in Germany and MiCAR-compliant. In 2026, the company merged with tradias, the institutional crypto trading partner behind leading European banks and brokers. With more than 300 international experts across eight locations in Stuttgart, Frankfurt, Athens, Berlin, Dubai, Ljubljana, Milan and Madrid, Boerse Stuttgart Digital enables financial institutions across Europe to offer their clients simple and reliable access to digital assets.

Media contact:
press@bsdigital.com